New Partner at Pritchard Englefield

Pritchard Englefield is delighted to announce that Mark Harden has joined the firm's Corporate and Commercial department as a Partner.

Mark advises on a wide range of corporate transactions, including corporate finance, mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and re-organisations. He also advises on all forms of partnerships.

Mark's clients range from large financial services organisations, including banks, insurance companies and loss adjusters, technology companies and construction companies to small and medium sized owner-managed businesses. A high proportion of the transactions Mark acts on have an international element and Mark has many clients in Russia and the Commonwealth of Independent States.

Prior to becoming a solicitor, Mark had a career in the electronics industry, including two years in a commercial management role at the Marconi Company. He completed his legal training in 1995 at a magic circle firm and stayed with that firm for a further five years after qualification. Mark's project management skills come to the fore in managing multidisciplinary teams on complex international transactions.

Pritchard Englefield is well known for its international work, and the firm's desire to extend its international reach Eastward coupled with Mark's Russia and CIS connections were the catalyst for his joining the firm and becoming the head of its new Russia and Eastern European Desk.
